AN ETERNITY IN HELL IS NOT WORTH...

- ...having illicit sex or an unscriptural marriage...
- ...even if it makes me happy for the moment.
- ...consuming alcohol or misusing drugs...
- ...even if it gives me an escape for the moment.
- ...dressing immodestly or being indecent with my body...
- ...even if it gains me attention for the moment.
- ...cheating in business or lying to others...
- ...even if it makes me more wealthy for the moment.
- ...running with the worldly crowd or compromising my Christianity...
- ...even if it makes me feel important for the moment.
- ...getting revenge or giving someone their 'just desserts'...
- ...even if it makes me feel like I have "gotten even" for the moment.
- ...overspending my money or putting my family in financial stress...
- ...even if I get the things I want for the moment.
- ...refusing to obey the gospel or repenting after having done so...
- ...even if I feel saved for the moment.

"VISITORS ARE ALWAYS WELCOME"

AND IT CAME TO PASS.....

An older man once sat in on a class in a Bible College. That day the professor asked his students to share a verse that means a great deal to them. The students were eager to oblige. They offered many great verses, rich with theological implications. When the class finished, the professor asked the visiting man if he would like to share his favorite verse. He agreed and said, "My favorite verses in the Bible are the ones that begin with the phrase, "and it came to pass." A few snickers could be heard among the prideful students so the elderly man added an additional comment.

He said, "Young men, allow me to explain why I answered as I did. You see, when I was 32, our first born son was killed by a drunk driver. My wife and I were devastated. We didn't know how we would go on, but we did. At the age of 45, our daughter came home on a break from college, sat her mother and me down, and proceeded to tell us why she no longer believed in God. She told us that God was merely an invention of man intended to be a crutch for the psychologically weak, and that she wanted no part of it. We found this to be more painful than the death of our son. At the age of 55, I lost my job. Due to my age at the time, I couldn't find a job. Everyone wanted to hire someone younger than me. Consequently we lost our home, and for six months we were forced to live in our car. Then at the age of 63, we discovered that my wife had cancer. For three years we fought that cancer as hard as we could, but my wife eventually died three years later. So you see young men, the events that have taken place in my life have caused me to appreciate and love the verses that begin with the words, "and it came to pass," for they are a reminder to me that the horrible circumstances in which we sometimes find ourselves don't "come to stay," they "come to pass."

After the man finished, you could have heard a pin drop. The class was no longer snickering because they learned a valuable lesson. You'll have many things "come to pass," in your life, but thank God they won't "come to stay!"

And it shall come to pass in the day that the LORD shall give thee rest from thy sorrow, and from thy fear, and from the hard bondage wherein thou wast made to serve.

FROM THE PREACHER'S HEART:

AN AFFAIR

Dear Ann Landers:

I first met her in High School. She was older than I, and exciting. She'd been around. My parents warned me to have nothing to do with her. They claimed no good could come from our relationship.

But I kept meeting her on the sly. She was so sophisticated and worldly. It made me feel grownup just being with here. It was fun to take her to a party in those days. She was almost always the center of attention.

We began seeing more of each other after I started college. When I got a place of my own, she was a frequent guest. It wasn't long before she moved in with me. It may have been common-law, but it was heart-breaking for my parents. I kept reminding myself I was not a kid anymore. Besides it was legal.

We lived together through college and into my early days in business. I seldom went anywhere without her, but I wasn't blind. I knew she was unfaithful to me. What's worse, I didn't care. As long as she was there when I needed her (and she always was), it didn't matter.

The longer we lived together, the more attached I became. But, it wasn't mutual. She began to delight in making me look foolish in front of my friends. But, still I couldn't give her up.

It became a love/hate relationship. I figured out that her glamour was nothing more than a cheap mask to hide her spite and cynicism. I could no longer see her beauty after I came to know her true character.

But old habits are hard to break. We had invested many years in each other. Even though my relationship with her made me lose respect for myself, she had become the center of my life. We didn't go anywhere. We didn't do anything. We didn't have friends over. It was just the two of us. I became deeply depressed and knew that she was responsible for my misery. I finally told her I was leaving for good. It took a lot of guts, but I left.

I still see her around. She's as beautiful as when we met. I still miss her now and then. I'm not boasting when I say she'd take me back in a minute. But by the grace of God, I'll never take up with her again.

If you see her, give her my regards. I don't hate her. I just loved her too much. Chances are you know her family. The name is Alcohol.
